Join us for our new course developed in collaboration with the EcoCAMHS group within the Royal College of Psychiatrists. This 2 day course is tailored to psychiatrists, providing you with the skills to take your practice into the natural environment. You may be new to the field of nature-based practice, interested in exploring your own nature connection and/or looking to influence psychiatry's service provision.

Why take this course

Nature connection is a powerful therapeutic tool for helping with a wide range of mental health conditions. This experiential training brings together best practice and theory from nature connection, eco-psychology, embodiment, resilience, mental health and neuroscience to enable working with individuals and groups of all ages.

You'll learn through experience, reflexive practice and doing and gain the skills to minimise risks associated with taking groups in your care outdoors.

You will learn a therapeutic nature-based model that meets your clients' whole health: their mind, body, social and environmental relationships.
